

Diocese & University of Scranton sign admissions agreement

SCRANTON – Graduates of the Diocese of Scranton’s four Catholic high schools have another reason to consider The University of Scranton if they are planning to attend college.

The University of Scranton and the Diocese of Scranton signed a memorandum of understanding on Thursday, Feb. 6, 2020, that will guarantee admission to the University and minimum scholarships of $15,000 or more for graduates who meet eligibility requirements.

“We’re grateful for the University’s commitment to the Diocese and our students,” Jason W.S. Morrison, Diocesan Secretary of Catholic Education and Chief Executive Officer, said during a signing ceremony held on the University of Scranton campus.

The memorandum will grant admission to most majors at the University to graduates of Holy Cross High School in Dunmore, Holy Redeemer High School in Wilkes-Barre, Notre Dame Junior/Senior High School in East Stroudsburg, and Saint John Neumann Junior/Senior High School in Williamsport. Graduates must have a minimum GPA (Grade Point Average) of 3.0 and either a 1080 SAT or a 21 ACT composite score or higher, and meet other criteria.

“For us, this is a chance to recognize something that we’ve always known, that the Diocesan System of schools in the Diocese of Scranton is outstanding and the families who make that investment to have their children go through that, we really wanted to reward that,” Gerry Zaboski, Vice President for Enrollment Management and External Affairs at the University of Scranton, said. “While we’ve always enrolled students from the Diocesan schools, we were looking for a way to expand that, to be able to help them understand the opportunities that we have here.”

The Diocese of Scranton and The University of Scranton have signed a memorandum of understanding that guarantees admission and minimum scholarships to the University for graduates of the four Diocesan high schools who meet eligibility requirements. Gathered for the signing ceremony are, front row, from left: Jason W.S. Morrison, Diocesan Secretary of Catholic Education and Chief Executive Officer, Diocese of Scranton; Rebekah Bernard, Information and Technology Specialist for Admissions and Enrollment, University of Scranton; Gerry Zaboski, Vice President for Enrollment Management and External Affairs, University of Scranton. Second row: Joseph Roback, Associate Vice Provost for Admissions and Enrollment, University of Scranton; Benjamin Tolerico, Principal, Holy Cross High School; Jeffrey Lyons, Principal, Notre Dame Jr./Sr. High School; Alisia McNamee, Principal, Saint John Neumann Jr./Sr. High School; Kristen Donohue, Superintendent of Catholic Schools, Diocese of Scranton; Doreen Dougherty, Principal, Holy Redeemer High School; Mary Kay Aston, Assistant Vice Provost for Admissions and Enrollment, University of Scranton.

Students who meet eligibility requirements will receive, at minimum, an annual $15,000 scholarship to the University with a total value of $60,000. The agreement will take effect for most majors beginning with the 2020-21 academic year.

Graduates of Diocese of Scranton high schools wishing to enroll in the University’s entry-level programs for occupational therapy (five-year master’s program), nursing (bachelor’s degree) and Doctor of Physical Therapy (guaranteed seat for seven-year program) must have a minimum GPA of 3.50 and either a 1270 SAT or a 27 ACT composite score, and meet other criteria. Students who meet the eligibility requirements will receive, at minimum, an annual $18,000 scholarship to the University with a total value of $72,000. The agreement for these majors will take effect beginning with the 2021-22 academic year.

The principals of all four Diocesan high schools attended the signing ceremony.

“Many of our kids look at the University of Scranton. It’s one of the first places and one of the more popular places they come to,” Jeff Lyons, principal of Notre Dame Junior/Senior High School, said.

“I’m ecstatic. I’ve been talking about it non-stop since I heard about it myself. What a wonderful opportunity to create that interest for the students, after giving you that four years of a Catholic education, we’re going to help you raise that level just a little bit more and here’s what you’re already guaranteed for continuing your education,” Alisia McNamee, principal of Saint John Neumann Junior/Senior High School, said. “I’m ecstatic to share the news. I really can’t wait. I think the families and the students will also be as excited and energized as I am about this new venture.”

Last fall’s incoming class at The University of Scranton included 29 graduates from the four Catholic high schools in the Diocese of Scranton.

“As a lot of our students are already beginning or are well into the process of looking at colleges and universities, we think this will be a game changer for them,” Morrison said. “It allows them the opportunity to think about the programs that the university is offering to them in a different way and it allows them to think about staying here in our local community which is really important.”

While The University of Scranton is proud to enroll students from all over the world, the largest number of its students are natives of northeastern Pennsylvania.

“This is serving the students that we really want to serve and were founded to serve,” Zaboski added.
