Ahead of pastoral visit to Africa, Bishop Bambera celebrates Mass with international priests from Ghana

In less than one week, the Most Reverend Joseph C. Bambera, Bishop of Scranton, along with Father Gerald Shantillo, Vicar General, and Father Brian J.T. Clarke, Director of the Pontifical Missions Office for the Diocese of Scranton, will begin a journey that will take them more than 5,000 miles from home.

The trio will travel to Africa, participating in a pastoral visit to the Diocese of Sunyani in Ghana.
For many years, the Diocese of Sunyani has generously shared its priests with the Diocese of Scranton. Currently, there are seven priests from Ghana ministering in the parishes of northeastern and north central Pennsylvania.

“It really means a great deal for me, on behalf of the clergy and the faithful of our diocese, to go to the Diocese of Sunyani and to share with their bishop and with all of their people, our deep gratitude for their presence here. It’s a sacrifice to travel halfway around the world and to live in a land that you don’t necessarily understand and know as well as your own home,” Bishop Bambera said.

'For Kids, By Kids' food program benefits children and community in multiple ways
Every Wednesday this summer, young adults have been coming together inside the Wyoming Valley Catholic Youth Center to “cook up” something special.

This week, the kids made Italian Chicken, stuffing and green beans to share with other kids in their community who might be less fortunate. The students distribute 150 meals each week outside Kistler Elementary School in Wilkes-Barre.

The preparation and cooking is new to many of them.

“First, we had to cut the chicken and make sure there was no excess skin. Then we had to season it and cook it,” Jackie Barba, 14, of Wilkes-Barre said.

This effort is known as the “For Kids, By Kids” Food Program. It was an idea developed from youth involved in community service through the Luzerne County Juvenile Wellness Court.

The Supreme Court's Dobbs decision overturning Roe v. Wade "presents a historic opportunity to reshape society for the better," said the chairmen of U.S. bishops' committees on pro-life activities, religious liberty, marriage and family, and domestic policy.

"The injustice of abortion has loosened its grip on our nation's Constitution," they said in an Aug. 1 joint statement. "We call on Congress to seize this hopeful moment by coming together around the dignity of every human person and the common good."

"This begins with the recognition that every human life is an inestimable gift from God with an inalienable right to life deserving of full legal protection," they said. "We must also recognize that the family - founded upon the love and mutual self-gift of husband and wife - is the first building block of society, and that raising children is both a great gift and a lifelong responsibility."
